

GENEALOGY FOR BEGINNERS

Presented by the Whitehouse Library

Have you ever wondered who your ancestors were? Was grandpa a horse thief, adventurer, or a member of the military who served in a military battle? Did you ever wonder where your family originated?

The Whitehouse Library is offering a class on Genealogy for Beginners on Monday, October 7th at 6:30 at the library. The class is free but due to limited space reservations are requested. To register call the library at 419-877-9088 or email Louann Artiaga at lsartiaga26@outlook.com.

The class will cover topics such as:

Getting off to the right start to avoid pitfalls in your research.

Where to look for information and documents.

I'm at a dead end so where do I go from here.

Combing for clues

Terms and abbreviations

Documenting your research

Setting realistic goals
